

As we waved good-bye to friends standing on the bank they warned me to be careful crawling around the heap in the boat, I was getting pretty awkward and we had to walk along the gunwale to the back of the boat. A month and more had passed since my checkup and still no baby. It was quite a job for Frank, who, after running the boat all day long, had to get us all out again, kid, cats, dogs, and fat wife. He also had to set up camp and help me get dinner over an open fire, rain or shine. And, believe me, there was plenty of rain that summer.
