

Does your job leave you feeling empty and tired? Is it hard for you to find time to pray? Are you constantly saying yes to others, only to find that you've neglected your own needs? There seems to be a void in the lives of many who reach out in the name of Christ. Exhaustion and burnout are the hallmarks of an epidemic that plagues the ranks of pastors, counselors, social workers, and medical professionals. In Caregivers at the Well, licensed clinical counselor Richard Glenn invites caregivers to find healing for their woundedness by cultivating a disciplined spiritual life. Drawing on the wisdom of timeless devotional classics, Glenn explores the deep nourishment that has inspired countless Christians to yearn for a closer daily walk with God. This book will help you identify patterns that prevent you from living a fulfilling spiritual life, envision new ways to experience the restorative power of prayers, discover the living water that Jesus promised to you as a believer, and revitalize your personal ministry by renewing your sense of Christian vocation.
