

This story takes the reader back in time to an era in American History one year after the first World War, peace and unemployment to the stock market crash that led to the Great Depression... Back in time to the years of Thomas Alva Edison, the birth of the electric light, Henry Ford and the automobile revolution...to Times Square and Broadway...to Jack Dempsey, Eddie Cantor, Jack Benny, Fred Allen and Amos & Andy... Back to the years of the Italian immigrants, the outdoor marketplace, crowded with pushcart vendors, hear them shouting out their bargains to passersby...to butcher shops, bakeries, fish stands and restaurants, enticing shoppers with their various aromas...wetting the readers palate with the smell of bread baking or a 10 cent slice of hot pizza... To the East Bronx, Little Italy, home of hundreds of Italian immigrants...to neighborhood gangs, the Mafia, bootleggers, loan sharks, bookies and family vendettas. Within the explosive environment, our story begins... Cry with her, as she is beaten, time and time again. Bones are broken, beatings that leave her beautiful face beyond recognition. Stand up with her, as she fights to protect her baby. Climb up with her, as she overcomes her pain and suffering. Go with her, to the sparkle and glitter of Broadway. Hear her songs, sing with her, applaud her loud and strong, for tonight, shes sensational. Praise, and cry with her, for shes the newest, the brightest shining star on Broadway.
