

For many homeowners window cleaning is a tiresome and difficult chore. For window cleaners it is a physical and demanding job. Fortunately there is a tool that makes window cleaning easier, safer, and more efficient, and makes it possible for a window cleaner to achieve outcomes unimaginable with conventional window cleaning tools such as squeegees. It also makes it possible to clean high windows on multi-storey buildings from the ground, and virtually eliminate the need for a ladder. It is called the water-fed pole, and it has revolutionised window cleaning, both for the home owner and the professional window cleaner. In this ebook you will learn the four basic parts of the water-fed pole system. You will also learn how to use it and how to deal with any challenges encountered. This ebook also contrasts the water-fed pole with conventional window cleaning and conventional window cleaning tools. As the water-fed pole is more expensive than conventional window cleaning tools, the information provided will help you determine whether to invest in this most useful of window cleaning tools.
